

1.

Gender Identity

17 responses

2.

Age

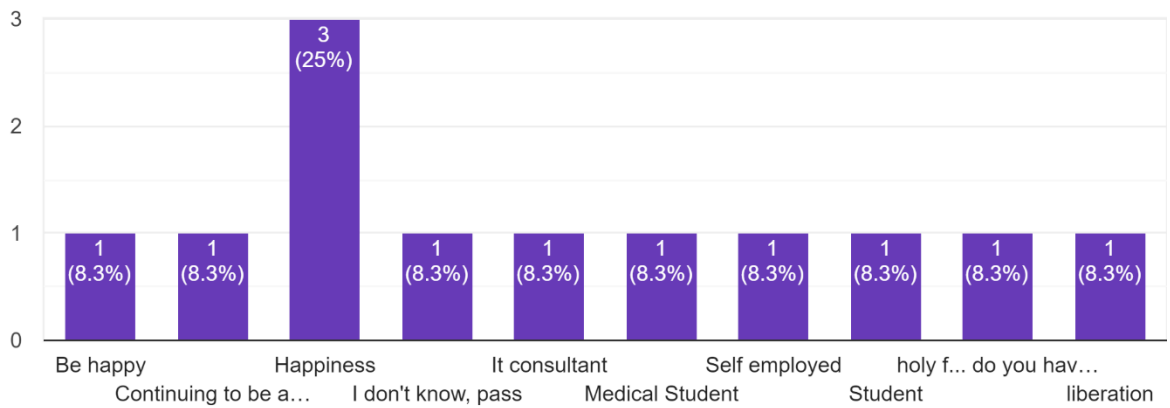

17 responses

3.

Life pursuit

12 responses

4.

Please enter your postal code where you live now

17 responses

5.

What worries you enough to cause a loss of sleep? 15 responses

Study
How to raise my children well, the world climate (culturally and literally)
Problems in the family
Failure, the idea of failing exams or turning out to be behind everyone else i know
I could die soon.
School
Nothing
Career

climate change, isolation from people, capitalism's total inability to address our current world's issues which drives us closer and closer to total destruction and death that's a pretty personal question, don't you think? my economy, my life, past traumas, what about yourself?
Work, money, family issues.
Work
Global warming
Personal problems
My job my family and my mental Health

6.

If you live in Copenhagen, what is a recurring concern you have about living a life in Copenhagen?¹¹ responses

None that is specific to Copenhagen
The pollution
Really i love Copenhagen, its a nice city with wonderful people and comes with lots of room for everyone.
I wouldn't say that I am worried about living in Copenhagen since Denmark is a safe place to live in, but the downside may be that it is an expensive place
I live in Aarhus
how the city promotes itself as a green city yet it's still full of environmentally harmful cars and electric scooters and it's heavily reliant on import from 3rd world countries and cheap labor for immigrants. Copenhagen is not a model for sustainable future cities and it sucks they want to be seen as one winter is coming
High prices for homes. Both renting and buying one
Transport expenses
Traffic, weather, etc...
I like it here

7.

Tick your favorite public spaces? Tick only 3

16 responses

8.

What makes these three spaces your favorite? 14 responses

The architecture/people
Calm atmosphere despite the amount of people
The water the trees and the architecture
ITC place ring and shopping
They're just really nice places i pass by when i take public transportation to and from university. The places offer a great real of cafés so i can get some rest when i feel like getting away from my studying.
it's nice places and for example "strøget" has a lot of great shops if you like to shop, but also great restaurants and "Nyhavn" is just a really great place very colorful.
makes me think of the old days when actual people lived in the city
Christiania, the youth house, Nørrebro (the parks, the red square, folkets hus, nørrebro in general) as real, born and breed copenhagener, none of the above have any interest, its tourist places, no cph'er have ever gone to the town hall square "just cause its such a lovely place", didn't even know there was a "ridebane" at Christiansburg?
There are lots of people there. Its filled with many stores nearby and have a nice atmosphere
Shopping, architecture, atmosphere
It's cozy and beautiful
On strøget there are no cars
Its nice seeing people from all around the world in one place
Freedom

9.

If there is a new waterfront public space, what would you like to have or do there?

17 responses

10.

On scale 1:5 how often do you use bridges for cycling or walking?

17 responses

11.

Which method are you more likely to use to give directions?

17 responses

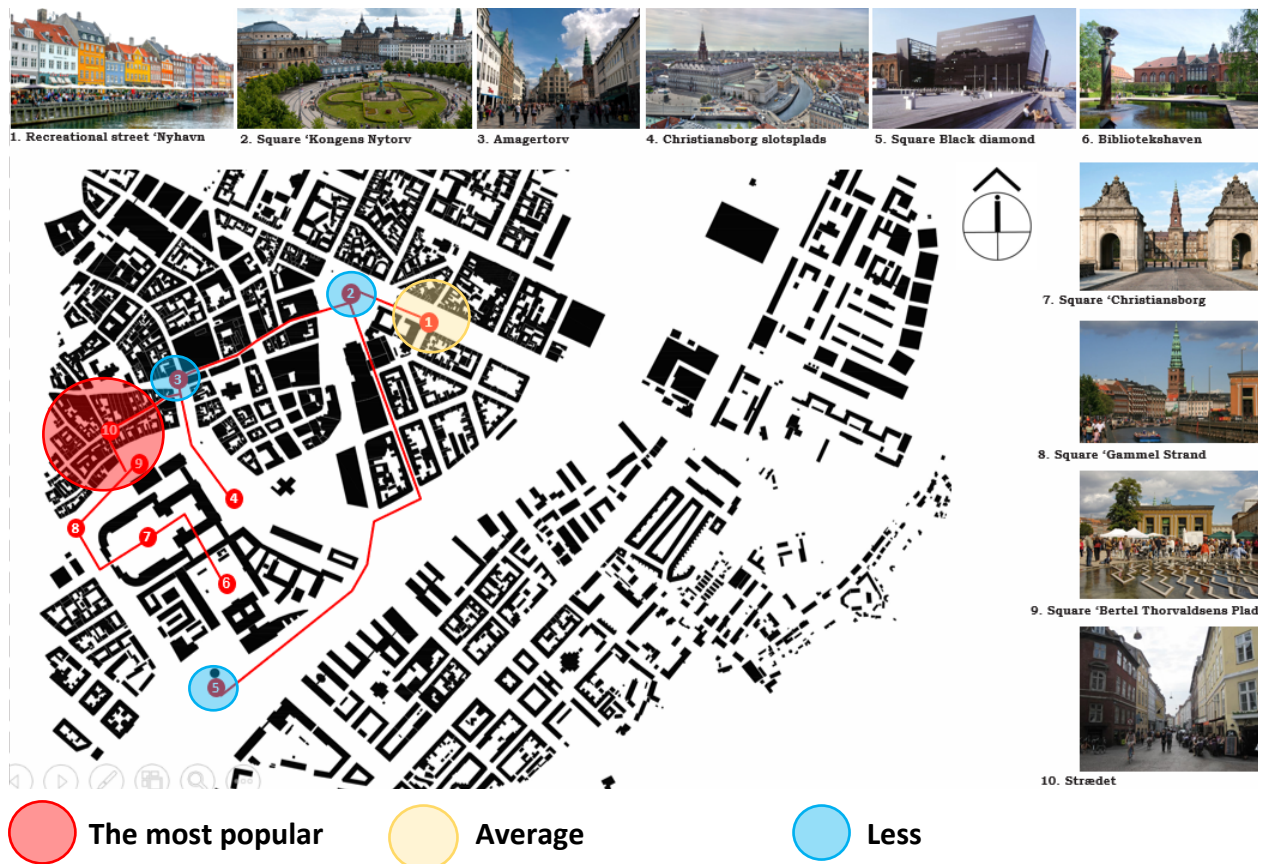

12.

What type of activity would you enjoy on the waterfront? 14 responses

Dolphins
Cafes
If there's access for coffee i would very much appreciate it to find some nice time to relax and find yourself.
Photography. Places to sit, lawns
Walking around?
Picnic
smoke a fat joint
to the above questions (btw. who made these questions? they make absolutely no sense) how often you use the bridges, it obviously depends on where i'm going, same goes for directions, where are you going? if it makes sense to use a street name, i will use it, but if its next to something, of course you'd say "it's right beside the round tower, you can't miss it" what do you want in a public place? what is it for?! and can we have a mix maybe, so it's not ONLY food, or whatever? plants, what kind of plants are you talking about? a grass lawn or something more interesting? furniture's? what and where? are you going to overbuilt everything, with ugly "design" furniture, or actually do something harmonic, and that makes sense? shading?! for how long have you been in dk? it's cold as balls here, and if the sun shines just a little the Danish people flock to the few places with sunlight! wind shading could be an idea, the other thing is just Ludacris thought by someone who have maybe experienced one or two very lucky summers, and therefore have absolutely no clue what they're talking about. i would like more places like bryggen or droning Louises bro, where it's not so f... fancy everywhere, and you need to spend way to much money on some fancy food from a hyped hipster shop on wheels. i would like a chilled place, where you can go to the nearby kiosk and buy a beer, coffee or ice-cream, for normal prices for normal people, who don't give a shit about image, who dont care about "a flat white on soy-milk" but who's ok with filter coffee for 12,- (look at the moon fisher, they get the point)
Relaxing while eating something good
Swimming Eating Springs

Conclusion:

There is different opinion regarding all the questions, but this was what we wandered for. As it was a very good tool to understand the Copenhagen citizen more in deep. In regard to the space's usage, the most popular once are shown below:

In addition, some more data have been considered:

- People like waterfront spaces rather than the other types. Location of the bridge is close to three of the most popular public spaces that people prefer to go and stay.
- Plant, shops, foods, furniture and Shading are what people would like to have on the bridge.
- Copenhagen is considered as a green city and 30% of people use bridges.
- More people prefer to use land mark for giving direction rather than Street names.
- People like to swim, relax, eat and walk on the waterfront.
- There are several reasons, which make people to avoid using bridges. These reasons are mixed pedestrian and bicycles, too many of an upward slope, inadequate lighting, unsafe railings, overcrowding and tourists, too much trash, too noisy area, storms and traffic as well.